

15/3/23

DEVELOPMENT
MANAGEMENT

16 MAR 2023

The Planning Committee
Chichester District Council
Pollant House.

Dear Sirs,

I enclose a copy of a letter
I wrote to our local RLP
after notification of your intention
to increase numbers of new houses
out of all proportion to the village, whose character would be unquestionably ruined by such
development.

I will not be involved into a step by step questionnaire as put forward by you as I don't have the necessary skills or equipment to do it online.
However my sentiments are undeniably

crtd

conveyed in the enclosed letter.
I trust you will take good
notice of them, and other objections
you will undoubtedly receive.

Yours faithfully

A large black rectangular redaction box covers the signature area, obscuring the name of the sender. A small horizontal line is visible below the redaction.

9/2/23

1)

To: Andrew Griffith MP
House of Commons
London SW1A 0AA

Dear Mr. Griffith,

In returning your NHS Survey, I am including my response to CDC's greedy/short-sighted and destructive plans to overwhelm this village with multiple unsupported housing.

I am disgusted by their railroading over objections from residents and the Parish Council, lacking any sensitivity or concern for the character of the area, wildlife habitats or the natural environment.

Such houses already built are stretching the existing infrastructure to the limit, whilst also being beyond affordability for those who most need to stay and work in the local area

- The school is already over-run with intake from Billingham whose own schools are full.

- People are frustrated and angry that they cannot secure doctors' appointments, let alone getting an answer to their phone calls.

- The press of traffic, (the majority of which vastly exceeds the speed limits), both within and through the village is relentless and dangerous

I have to quote here, from a book by two young farmers, who so succinctly echo my thoughts and fears:

'Our world has become heavily influenced or affected by the dominant hand of humans as we are beginning to change the very

a decline in food crops for a population which in its relentless increase in numbers, already cannot adequately feed itself.

More should be done right now to prevent the countryside being raped in favour of bricks and mortar.

Existing, empty houses and even commercial buildings could be made over to housing.

Second home owners should be penalised when many of their properties lie empty for a greater part of the year, to allow them the odd weekend getaway in their rural bolt holes.

Your letter to me (7th Feb) states a commitment to halt the decline of nature by 2030, and recovery thereafter. It's already too late the climate and planet are already on a fast track to destruction.

These pledges should have been acted on 30 years ago!!
Words are empty, with no implementation!
Sincerely Annette P. Gray

climate we live in and the very genetics
of the animals and plants we live alongside. This view of humanity as something separate to nature has fuelled a severing of our collective roots as many no longer respect
the life we share our planet with,
always taking and rarely giving,
seeking to manage and control,
draining resources and energy.
(Cassells & Baer)

Also:

'If the claims of nature are considered
at all they are almost always calculated in terms of human benefits'
(Adam Nicholson)

Planners are defiant in pursuit of goals to house this overpopulated world.

They are selfishly inconsiderate
of the fact that all life is interdependent.

Numbers of pollinating insects are falling drastically, thus follows